

WANT TO SHAPE WORLDS WITH WORDS?

Use writing to effect the changes you wish to see in the spaces through which you move and live.

Many writers are working to make a difference in the world. This FULLY VIRTUAL course is an opportunity to practice just that: to explore the theory and practice of writing that serves the public interest, as well as the ethics of such writing. Students will explore creative/persuasive works for public audiences in order to craft their own examples of writing that is designed to make a change.

Writers of all kinds (love it, hate it, need the requirement, just want to get better at the craft) are most welcome.

WRITING FOR THE PUBLIC | SUMMER (1) 2022
MAY 15 TO JUNE 25

ENGCOMP 0420 (Web-Based)
Fulfills Writing Intensive General Education Requirement
Questions to: cholding@pitt.edu

Image by: Tetiana Lazunova